

I am in agreement with the comments made by ARRL relative to this docket. Additionally, I wish to comment on the practice of multiple applications filed on a single day for Vanity Calls. This creates an unfair statistical advantage for those with the time and funds to generate unlimited applications. It creates the appearance of abuse of the system and basic unfairness. It may also increase costs to taxpayers and ultimately lead to increased fees for amateurs. It appears reasonable that only a single application be accepted from any applicant in a single day. Applications in excess of one should be summarily dismissed. David P. Johnson, M.D.; W2AAZ
